

Toby Monster Middle School

Toby was always a happy little monster. He loved to try new things and his parents almost always supported him. He was extremely shy and he didn't make a lot of friends. His only friends were his friends in elementary school. But now he was moving on to middle school and all his friends went to a different middle school. Today he was going to his first day at Monster Middle School as a sixth grader.

Toby was very shy for one reason, he was a very unique monster. He was afraid that someone wouldn't like him so he didn't really try to make a lot of friends. As Toby walked into the school he pondered the thought that he should try to make a friend today but before he could think more the bell rang and he walked into the building.

He walked into a classroom full of kids, he walked up to the teacher and she asked "What is your name honey?"

He replied "My name is Toby".

She exclaimed "Oh wonderful, your seat is over there next to Jake."

He followed her point over to a young dragon there was an empty desk next to him. He walked over to it and set his stuff down. He looked over at Jake, who was talking to a gnome.

He said "Excuse me I will be sitting next to youuuuu" and then he trailed off because it was clear Jake didn't hear him or if he did he just ignored him. After the teacher got everyone settled down Toby tried talking to Jake again and he said "Hi my name is Toby".

Jake once again ignored him. Toby gave up then and simply admitted the fact that it was going to be really hard to find a friend. At the end of the day Toby had gym. This was Toby's worst subject. He always loved sports and it was one of his favorite things to do. The problem was Toby wasn't very good at sports. Toby was not very happy at gym class because all of his classmates were extremely good at sports so during warm-ups he was last to finish running so the teacher made him do twenty pushups and the whole class went on like that, last pick, worst player. Every time something like this happened the whole class laughed at him and the teacher made him do twenty pushups. At the end of the day Toby walked home from school without a friend and little to none arm strength.

Toby was extremely tired the next day and his arms felt like they were on fire. He also had gym that day too with the same class and the same teacher at the same time. Also that day he had algebra, science, reading, social studies, and writing all of which he excelled at. Once Toby got to gym he had already finished all his homework in class. This gym class went by very similar to the day before's gym class. Once again Toby had no arm strength at the end of the day. But today Toby was going to stay after school and read.

He sat down on a bench feeling depressed that he still had yet to make a friend. He started reading his new book called The Hunger Games. He had heard it was about some monsters that fought to the death in an arena. He had just reached the part where a young monster named Katniss Everdeen volunteered to go into the arena instead of her little sister Prim when some 8th graders walked up to him and asked him "Hey are you Toby Hall?"

He replied "Yes" which turned out to be the wrong decision.

"Well I guess your Mr. geeky pants my little brother was talking about, You finished all your homework huh?" He questioned.

"Yeah" He said trembling. He couldn't believe this was happening to him, he didn't hurt anyone. He didn't make anyone feel left out, how could he? He didn't have any friends in the first place. Then he realized why he was being left out so much, because he didn't try that hard to get a friend. Yet he was the one sitting right here getting bullied by kids that weren't even in his class. He decided that his only hope was to run then he could call for help but until then he was stuck on the bench farthest away from where people are.

He started sprinting between two of the four 8th graders and he got through them but not without losing his backpack. which they easily slid off his back. He knew he could easily outrun them without his backpack but he needed his backpack, his keys and phone were in there!

They yelled at him "Hey you need your backpack don't ya, well you can either run home to your mommy and daddy and let us keep your backpack or you can try to get it back from US." He said laughing.

Toby knew that he would have to go and get his backpack. But he also knew that that was exactly what they wanted him to do. He decided that it was now or never and he dove into the 8th graders and his backpack. There was tons of scratching, kicking, biting, punching, and worst of all stomping. The bullies completely overpowered Toby, and they kept stomping on him until someone nearby started screaming for help. Once someone got there the bullies just bolted off not wanting to get in trouble, but before they could someone took pictures of them. Just in case they tried to skip school or something like that.

Once the bullies were hauled off Toby. One of the kids in Toby's class called an ambulance and Toby was sped off to the hospital. Once there they contacted Toby's parents and found out that he had a broken arm. Added to that he had tons of cuts and bruises all over his body.

The four bullies names were James, Marie, Gabe, and Al. They were all expelled from the school. Since their parents were so mad at them they all were grounded for a year and their phones were taken away.

Everyone started to realize what a cool kid Toby was and Toby grew to be best friends with the boy in his class who called the ambulance. His name was Goron.
